► Clausewitz's on war : a biography / Hew Strachan.

New York : Grove Press, 2008.
238 p.

*Perhaps the most important book on military strategy ever written, Carl von Clausewitz's On War has influenced generations of generals and politicians, has been blamed for the unprecedented death tolls in the First and Second World Wars, and is required reading at military academies to this day. But On War, which was never finished and was published posthumously, is obscure and fundamentally contradictory. What Clausewitz declares in book 1, he discounts in book 8. The language is confusing and the relevance not always clear. For a book that has truly changed the world, On War is extremely difficult for the general reader to approach, to reconcile with itself, and to place in context. Hew Strachan, one of the world's foremost military historians answers these problems in this fascinating book. He explains how and why On War was written, elucidates what Clausewitz meant, and offers insight into the impact it made on conflict and its continued significance in our world today. This is a must read for fans of military history.--

► Commanders / R.G.Grant.

New York : DK publishing , 2013.
360 p. : ill., maps ; 26 cm.

From Alexander the Great's conquest of the known world to the generals leading today's campaigns in Afghanistan, Commanders casts new light on the leaders who have forged history on the battlefield. Focusing on the greatest leaders in naval, field, and aerial warfare, such as Julius Caesar, Napoleon, and Horatio Nelson, the book gives an at-a-glance overview of each commander's life, provides a timeline, key data, and a psychological profile outlining the commander's strengths and weaknesses. Commanders also follows great leaders from outside the Western tradition, including the great Chinese, Japanese, Indian, Native American, and African leaders, explaining who fought whom and why.

vi, 127 p. : ill. (some col.), col. map ; 18 cm.

► Ending holy wars : religion and conflict resolution in internal armed conflicts / Isak Svensson.

St Lucia : Univ of Queensland Press , 2013.
xiv, 218 pages ; 23 cm.

Ending Holy Wars explores how religious dimensions affect the possibilities for conflict resolution in civil war. This is the first book that systematically tries to map out the religious dimensions of internal armed conflicts and explain the conditions under which religious dimensions impede peaceful settlement. It draws upon empirical work on global data, based on the Uppsala Conflict Data Program (UCDP), and complements this quantitative data with several smaller case studies (Sri Lanka, Philippines and Indonesia). The book shows how religious identities and incompatibilities influence the likelihood of agreements and the mechanisms through which parties and third-party mediators have been able to overcome religious obstacles to negotiated settlements. These findings pave the way for a discussion on how conflict theory can better incorporate religious dimensions, as well as how policy can be designed to manage religious dimensions in armed conflicts.

► Evaluating peace operations / Paul F. Diehl and Daniel Druckman.

Boulder : Lynne Rienner , 2010.
ix, 234 p. : ill. ; 23 cm.

There has been a great deal written on why peace operations succeed or fail. But how are those judgments reached? By what criteria is success defined? Success for whom? Paul Diehl and Daniel Druckman explore the complexities of evaluating peace operation outcomes, providing an original, detailed framework for assessment. The authors address both the theoretical and the policy-relevant aspects of evaluation as they cover the full gamut of mission goals from conflict mitigation, containment, and settlement to the promotion of democracy and human rights. Numerous examples from specific peace operations illustrate their discussion. A seminal contribution, their work is a foundation not only for the meaningful assessment of peace operations, but also for approaches that can increase the likelihood of successful outcomes.

► Foreign fighters : transnational identity in civil conflict / David Malet

► Wealth and power : China's long march to the twenty-first century / Orville Schell.

Rsndon House : New York, 2013.

478 p. : ill. maps, ports. ; 24 cm.

"In Wealth and Power, their crisp and comprehensive introduction to the history of modern China, historians Orville Schell and John Delury present us with the historical background we need to understand the driving mechanism that lies at the center of China today. By no longer presenting China's past two centuries as a record of recurrent failures and humiliations, they give us a portrait of a nation in the making, and of leaders with the skills and determination to redirect China's energies on a global scale. The change of perspective is valuable and challenging." - Jonathan D. Spence, author of The Search for Modern China.

UNITED STATES

Strategy and submarine / William J Holland.

Proceedings US Naval Institute : December 2013, pp. 48-53 (86)

Describes, in relation to the development of US submarine forces, the complex interactions between defence policy, strategy, tactics and equipment, and shows that these do not follow a simple linear progression as found in business and economic models.

UNMANNED SYSTEMS

A few disruptive thoughts / Ryan Hilger.

Proceedings US Naval Institute : December 2013, pp. 60-65 (86)

The US Navy is being urged to adopt unmanned systems (air, surface and underwater) as fast as possible. This competition winning essay argues that this policy has a fundamental flaw: there is not enough information or understanding of the "full range of capabilities, limitations, and implications of unmanned systems". Particular attention should be given to how enemies could use such systems against the US, and from that develop ways to maintain America's advantages.

Unman your battle stations! / Michael J Dobbs.

Proceedings US Naval Institute : December 2013, pp. 66-70 (86)

The capabilities and degree of autonomy of unmanned systems are growing quickly. This article considers what effect removing direct human input will have on future naval warfare.
