207 p.

- Admirals of the world : a biographical dictionary, 1500 to the present / William Stewart.

Jefferson, N.C. ; London : McFarland & Company, 2009.
v. 335 p. ; 26 cm.

"This work provides biographies of more than 500 individuals who have served as admiral, vice admiral, or rear admiral from 22 countries. The main criterion for inclusion was that each person must have actively served in the rank of at least rear admiral, although each individual did not necessarily become involved in enemy action"--
Provided by publisher.

- Alone together : why we expect more from technology and less from each other / Sherry Turkle.

New York : Basic Books, 2011.
xvii, 360 p. ; 25 cm.

In "Alone Together," MIT technology and society professor Sherry Turkle explores the power of our new tools and toys to dramatically alter our social lives. It's a nuanced exploration of what we are looking for--and sacrificing--in a world of electronic companions and social networking tools, and an argument that, despite the hand-waving of today's self-described prophets of the future, it will be the next generation who will chart the path between isolation and connectivity.

- ▶ Deserter : the last untold story of the Second World War / Charles Glass.

London : Harper Press, 2013.
390 p. ; 25 cm.

The extraordinary story of the deserters of the Second World War. What made them run? And what happened after they fled? During the Second World War, the British lost 100,000 troops to desertion, and the Americans 40,000. Commonwealth forces from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Britain's colonial empire also left the ranks in their thousands. The overwhelming majority of deserters from all armies were front-line infantry troops; without them, the war was harder to win. Many of these men were captured and court marshalled, while others were never apprehended. Some remain wanted to this day. Why did these men decide to flee their ranks? In 'Deserter', veteran reporter and historian Charles Glass follows a group of British and American deserters into the heat of battle and explores what motivated them to take their fateful decision to run away.

- Greatest traitor : the secret lives of agent George Blake / Roger Hermiston.

London : Aurum Press, 2013.
xxii, 362 pages, 16 unnumbered pages of plates : illustrations, portraits : 24 cm.

On 3 May 1961, after a trial conducted largely in secret, a man named George Blake was sentenced to an unprecedented forty-two years in jail. At the time few details of his crimes were made known. By his own confession he was a Soviet spy and rumours later circulated that his actions had endangered British agents, but the reasons for such a severe punishment were never revealed. To the public, Blake was simply the greatest traitor of the Cold War. Yet, as Roger Hermiston reveals in this thrilling new biography, his story touches not only the depths of treachery, but also the heights of heroism. In WWII the teenage Blake performed sterling deeds for the Dutch resistance, before making a dramatic bid for freedom across Nazi-occupied Europe. Later recruited by British Intelligence, he quickly earned an exemplary reputation and was entrusted with building up the Service's networks behind the Iron Curtain.

- Jane's amphibious and special forces / Ewen Southby-Tailyour.

Issue 30
Coulsdon, UK : Jane's Information Group Ltd., 2013 [46], 690 p. ; 30 cm

The emphasis is on amphibious special forces with less detail on other arms e.g. airborne special forces. Entries are alphabetic by country name. Each entry has some or all of the following: country overview; special forces by branch (government, maritime, land, air, coastal defence); sea lift capability; maritime air support; armour, artillery, support and infantry weapons; military vehicle and logistics; points of contact. Glossary, bibliography. Readers are reminded that special forces are by nature clandestine so open-source information may be very limited. The executive summary in this issue includes an analysis of amphibious warfare covering history, composition, advantages and disadvantages, operations other than war, asymmetric threats, sea basing, and a commentary on British developments arising from the 2010 defence review.

- Jane's fighting ships 2013-2014 / edited by Stephen Saunders

Coulsdon, UK : Jane's Information Group Ltd., 2013 [100], 1030 p.

A survey of the world's naval forces and their ships, arranged alphabetically by country name. Each country entry gives variable details (as applicable) about naval forces including: headquarters appointments, flag officers, operational units, fleet home ports, naval attaches, bases, total numbers of personnel, strength of the fleet, details of fleet air squadrons, and pennant list. Details of countries fleets are then sub-arranged under ship type headings e.g. Corvettes, Destroyers etc. The most detail is given for major warship entries which include: number and class name; building programme - builders' names and key dates; hull - specification and performance parameters, and hull related details such as military lift, cargo capacity, dimensions and speed (a glossary explains the terminology); weapon systems; aircraft - types and numbers; and general comments such as whether ships listed in order of battle could more accurately be described as being in reserve. Minor or less important ship entries follow the same format, but with less detail. Photographs of craft are the most up to date available and most are in full colour. At the front of the book are sections on ensigns and flags of the world's navies (in colour); ranks and insignia of the world's navies (including Brunei); and a list of pennants of major vessels. At the back of the book are indexes of vessel names and class names. See also 'Jane's All the World's Aircraft' for naval aircraft and 'Jane's Naval Weapon Systems'.

Cambridge ; New York : Cambridge Univ Press, 2011.
xii, 368 p. : ill., maps ; 24 cm.

"Drawing on recent studies of the links between empire, colonialism, and genocide, Nazi Empire: German Imperialism and Colonialism from Bismarck to Hitler examines German history from 1871 to 1945 as an expression of the aspiration to imperialist expansion and the simultaneous fear of destruction by rivals. Acknowledging the important differences among the Second Empire, the Weimar Republic, and the Third Reich, Shelley Baranowski nonetheless reveals a common thread: the drama of German imperialist ambitions that embraced ethnic homogeneity over diversity, imperial enlargement over stasis, and "living space" as the route to the biological survival of the German Volk "--

Thus, announcing the launch of Block 2 production. The events which took place at its Kamra facility, north of Islamabad, marked two key milestones for the programme which is collaboration between China's Chengdu Aircraft Corporation and the Pakistan Air Force-run PAC.

PLA Air Force : a force to be reckoned with.

Asia Pacific Defence Reporter : Vol 40 No 1, February 2014, pp. 38-41 (9)

Reports that so far China has relied mainly on Western and Russian engineering for its aircraft - in some cases using extensive reverse engineering to create local variants of foreign planes. However given the country's resources, skill at copying can be expected to lead in time to innovation. Discusses production figures and aircraft types including UAVs, and notes the importance for the latter of China's own GPS system.

COMMUNICATIONSLaser communications: light at the end of a long tunnel?/ Jim Oberlin

Jane's International Defence Review: Vol 47, March 2014, pp.34-35 (120)

There is a resurgence of interest in the high-data rate potential of laser communications. However, atmospheric and engineering constraints still remain as substantial challenges.

JP 2069 high grade cryptographic equipment / Geoff Slocombe.

Asia Pacific Defence Reporter : Vol 40 No 2, March 2014, p.26-27 (9)

Discusses Australia's long term defence Joint Project 2069 which in its current phase is concerned with high level cryptography.

CYBER SECURITYThe growing cyber threat / Kym Bergmann.

Asia Pacific Defence Reporter : Vol 40 No 2, March 2014, pp.12-13 (9)

Overview of recent developments in cyber warfare. What governments can do has to be tempered by recognition of the possible retaliation they might suffer as a consequence. At the everyday level threats such as ransomware are becoming ever more sophisticated; the article suggests that in addition to trying to prevent attacks organisations will need to pay more attention to recovering from them.

Cyber security : defence information assurance / Geoff Slocombe.

Asia Pacific Defence Reporter : Vol 40 No 2, March 2014, pp.14-17 (9)

Australia is investing heavily to maintain security of its defence information systems, projects, and information contents to protect what it sees as its regional technological advantage.

DEFENCE EQUIPMENT & TECHNOLOGYWeight-performance-cost : the golden triangle of transparent armour solutions / Paolo Valpolini.

Armada International : Vol 38 No 1, February March 2014, pp.16-25 (2)

Review of recent trends in armoured glass for military vehicles.

Lights on a turning point.

Armada International Compendium : 2014, 34 p.

Supplement to Armada about light armoured vehicles that notes the benefits offered by their size and versatility. Describes a variety of new products and includes a fold-out brief guide to 32 different models.

DEFENCE INDUSTRYThe US and Canadian defence industries.

Asian Defence Journal: Jan-Feb 2014, pp.28-30 (131)

Making weapons has become a US specialty. The US is still at the top of the five largest suppliers of major conventional weapons during 2008-2012. Meanwhile, Canada's aerospace and defence industry has tripled in terms of global market share in the last 20 years.

ECONOMICSChina's changing impact on regional manufacturing.

Asia Monitor Southeast Asia Vol 1 Vol 24 Issue 10, October 2013, p.8 (49)

China is changing from low skill low technology to high-skill high-tech manufacturing, is experiencing rising wages, and has to cope with an ageing population. This report looks at the impact this will have in the region; Northeast Asia will experience more direct competition from China, meanwhile some Southeast Asian countries are expected to benefit from some relocation of lower end manufacturing out of China, a process described as China-plus-one.

South East Asia standing tall.

Asia Monitor Southeast Asia Vol 1 : Vol 24 Issue 2, February 2013, p.8. (49)

Report on SE Asia's economic prospects in 2013. These are considered to be positive as monetary policy, rising wages, and political stability all support growth.

ELECTRONIC WARFAREIntegrated masts and EW : present and future solutions in Europe / Luca Peruzzi.

Journal of Electronic Defense : Vol 37 No 2, February 2014, pp. 24-31 (70)

Modern combat ships have to accommodate numerous different electronic systems and dedicated antennas (as many as fifty in one ship according to this article each with its own discrete function - surveillance, communications, EW, SIGINT, threat identification, fire control systems and navigation. All these require space both above and below deck. The article describes efforts being made to improve integration and consolidation with the aims of achieving multi-functionality and reducing the number of antennas and sub-systems. Describes developments from Netherlands, Spain, France, Italy, Turkey, Germany and UK.

Simulation : practice makes perfect / H Bryon Green.

Journal of Electronic Defense : Vol 37 No 2, February 2014, pp. 33-36 (70)

Describes the problems caused in the electro-magnetic spectrum by data overload, lack of interoperability, and varying degrees of system autonomy. Then discusses how the latest generation of simulation systems can help to resolve these problems for training purposes.

FLYINGNew Zealand awards new pilot training capability contract to Beechcraft / Geoff Slocombe.

Asia Pacific Defence Reporter : Vol 40 No 2, March 2014, p.28-30 (9)

The first trainees under New Zealand's recently announced military pilot training system are expected to begin in 2016. Eleven Beechcraft T-6C aircraft plus simulators and other products and services are part of the $154million package.

INDIACoast control/ Shishir Upadhyaya

Jane's Defence Weekly: Vol 51 Issue 4, 22 January 2014, pp.24-30 (122)

India has taken significant steps to build up its coastal security infrastructure following the 2008 terrorist attacks in Mumbai.

India's naval buildup gains steam.

Proceedings US Naval Institute : October 2013, pp.88-89 (86)

Review of the Indian Army's procurement and development plans.

INDONESIA

Indonesia, Japan agree to '2+2' meetings/ Kosuke Takahashi

Jane's Defence Weekly: Vol 51 No 11, 12 March 2014, p.16 (122)

The foreign ministers of Japan and Indonesia have agreed to hold '2+2' foreign and defence ministerial talks as soon as possible to strengthen the two nations' comprehensive strategic partnership - a move that appears to suggest the countries are moving to counter Chinese advances into the Pacific.

Reform of the Indonesian civil service : keeping up with decentralization / Priyono Tjiptoherijanto.

The Indonesian Quarterly : Vol 41 No 4, 2013, pp. 233-247 (30)

Indonesia's public sector has about 3.74 million staff. This article provides a historical overview and then looks at the efforts being made to promote reform, improve efficiency and effectiveness, and enhance accountability. All this is being done while also moving towards more localisation.

The implementation of the National Community Empowerment Program in West Borneo / Hasan Almutahar.

The Indonesian Quarterly : Vol 41 No 4, 2013, pp.248-275 (30)

Using the case of West Borneo this article describes how Indonesia is trying to improve local community participation in development with a view to not only achieving local effects but also to provide feedback to regional and national level which can then be used to adjust policies.

INSURGENCY & COUNTERINSURGENCY

Outside support for insurgent movements / Daniel Byman.

Studies in Conflict & Terrorism : Vol 36 No 12, December 2013, pp 9 981-1004 (114)

Discusses the importance of the international dimension in support for insurgencies, and considers costs and risks of four categories of such support: from states, diasporas, refugees, and other insurgencies. Also considers why such support is difficult to stop. Concludes by considering external support in the case of the conflict in Syria.

JAPAN

Bucking the trend: Japan produces a lighter tank for the JGSDF/ R.M. Ogorkiewicz

Jane's International Defence Review: Vol 47, March 2014, pp.32-33 (120)

Japan has developed a lighter, more deployable tank to replace the Type 74 and Type 90. The vehicle will also serve alongside a Centauro-like wheeled direct-fire vehicle.

LEADERSHIP

Triggering innovation and initiative.

Proceedings US Naval Institute : November 2013, pp.70-74 (86)

2013 Leadership Essay Contest winning entry. Identifies two types of leader: pile drivers who use pressure to achieve results but need to maintain close contact with all details, and environmentalists who empower subordinates to be innovative and use their initiative. If the US Navy's primary requirement is getting things done then either kind of leader will do, but as a means of developing future leaders the enabler's legacy is likely to be better.

MALAYSIA

The disappearance of Flight 370/ Hannah Beech and Nikhil Kumar

TIME: Vol.183 No.12, 31 March 2014, p.14-19 (135)

This article takes a look and analyse how the Malaysia Airlines jet slipped through the world's web of surveillance.

MARITIME SECURITY

The new knowledge network / Rob Parker ...[et al.].

Proceedings US Naval Institute : October 2013, pp.24-29 (86)

Collaboration and coordination are essential to ensure that incidents either do not occur (non-events), or are contained early enough to "substantially mitigate negative consequences". This paper considers the maritime environment, the multiplicity of agencies and information sources, the opportunities offered by social media, and the need to move away from rigid hierarchical command and control systems. The paper also features historical examples of cooperation that worked (breaking Enigma code) and one that did not (Pearl Harbor).

MILITARY ART & SCIENCEA2/AD : the death knell for amphibious operations?

Proceedings US Naval Institute : February 2014, pp.22-27 (86)

There have been suggestions that Anti Access Area Denial (A2/AD) means that amphibious operations will no longer be possible. This article explains, with the help of historical examples, why the US Marine Corps will rise to the challenge and will continue to undertake such operations.

MISCELLANEOUSTravelers' thrombosis / Raymond V Johnson ...[et al.].

Aviation, Space and Environmental Medicine : Vol 85 No 2, February 2014, pp.191-194 (62)

Venous thromboembolism is widely, but incorrectly, assumed to be a feature only of air travel. This paper reports that any form of travel transport in which an individual is immobile for over 4 hours can predispose to thrombosis, thus the term 'travellers' thrombosis' is considered more appropriate.

The unruly world: the case for good enough global governance/ Stewart Patrick

Foreign Affairs: Vol 93 No 1 January/February 2014, pp 58-73 (76)

International cooperation is increasingly taking place outside formal institutions, as frustrated actors turn to informal groups and ad hoc venues. The resulting clutter may be unsightly, but it's here to stay – so the challenge is to make it work as well as possible.

The next security frontier.

Proceedings US Naval Institute : October 2013, pp.30-35 (86)

Assessment of the implications of climate change, together with a look at strategies that will be needed to cope with them.

Not extinct any time soon: the MBT market/ Peter Donaldson

Asian Defence & Diplomacy: Vol 21, Jan/Feb 2014, pp.6-9 (130)

Amid the constant debate questioning the relevance of the main battle tank, the world's militaries continue to buy and upgrade them.

Hiding behind mission command: how the fear of micromanagement prevents leader involvement in detailed planning./ Brian J. Harris

The Cavalry & Armor Journal : Vol 4 No 4, Oct-Dec 2013, pp.42-44 (64)

The part about mission orders within the definition of mission command seems to be the point lost upon many officers and noncommissioned officers leading at the company and lower field-grade level. There are six principles to mission command, with mission orders being one of them. This article goes on to define mission orders which will be broken down and discussed further.

MISSILESAEGIS : a continuum of excellence.

Proceedings US Naval Institute : February 2014, pp. 46-51 (86)

Provides a short history of America's Aegis weapon system, starting with its successful destruction in 2008 of an out-of-control satellite beyond the earth's atmosphere.

Jane's International Defence Review: Vol 47, March 2014, pp.5 (120)

NATO leaders are to gather for their next summit in South Wales, UK in September 2014 with the alliance's activities in Afghanistan expected to dominate the headlines. However, the meeting's two other agenda topics – capability development and linking partner countries for future operations, are the more strategic issues weighing on NATO's long term prospects.

NATO steps up co-operation with Ukraine, lowers it with Russia/ Brooks Tigner

Jane's Defence Weekly: Vol 51 No 11, 12 March 2014, p.05 (122)

NATO and Ukraine are stepping up their military and political co-operation in the face of "the gravest threat to European security" in a quarter century, NATO Seceratry General Anders Fogh Rasmussen has said.

NAVAL

Naval Surface-to-Air Missiles: defending capital ships/ MF Kamaruddin

Asian Defence Journal: Jan-Feb 2014, pp.20-22 (131)

While radar and armour stand as passive defence measures, the equipment of stronger firepower onboard ships ensures an ability to generate offensive measure against not only aerial threats, but also against surface and underwater threats.

NAVAL WEAPONS

China's carrier killer : threat and theatrics / Otto Kreisher.

Air Force Magazine : Vol 96 No 12, December 2013, pp.44-47 (58)

Considers whether China's DF-21D ant-ship ballistic missile is a game-changing A2/AD weapon or one for which counter measures either already exist or can soon be developed.

NUCLEAR WEAPONS

The future of the nuclear order / Scott D Sagan.

Current History : Vol 113 No 759, January 2014, pp.23-25 (20)

Considers whether restraint since 1945 concerning use of nuclear weapons is any guide to the future, particularly in view of the slow but apparently inexorable proliferation of nuclear capabilities.

PEACE

The waning of warfare / Bruce Russett.

Current History : Vol 113 No 759, January 2014, pp.30-32 (20)

Since the end of the Second World War there has been a significant decline in armed conflict. This is said to be due mainly to the increase in numbers of democratic states which act as one of many inputs (others include international organizations, trade and economic development, international law) to a self reinforcing system.

PEACE OPERATIONS

Let's get serious about peacetime ops.

Proceedings US Naval Institute : October 2013, pp.54-58 (86)

To be ready for peace operations the US Navy needs to develop relevant theory, doctrine, and training which recognise the differences between peace operations and war missions.

PERFORMANCE OPTIMISATION

Integrating the human into the total system : degradation of performance under stress / Steven Kornguth ... [et al.].

Naval Engineers Journal : Vol 125 No 4, December 2013, pp.85-90 (40)

PIRACY

Lessons from the Somali pirate experience.

Proceedings US Naval Institute : February 2014, pp. 76-78 (86)

Short review of counter-piracy measures which lists four practical lessons, and notes that the problem appears to be declining off Somalia but increasing elsewhere in the world.

POLITICSThe next democratic century / Larry Diamond.

Current History : Vol 113 No 759, January 2014, pp.8-11 (20)

Argues that in the twenty-first century democracy will continue to spread as the preferred form of government and that growing education leading to psychological and social changes "will undermine the legitimacy of authoritarian rule". Suggests for example that Asia could become mainly democratic within a decade.

POPULATIONThe human population unbound / Nicholas Eberstadt.

Current History : Vol 113 No 759, January 2014, pp. 43-46 (20)

The population of the world quadrupled between 1900 and 2000, a rise primarily due to improved health and nutrition. Over the same period birth rates have declined dramatically so that now some 80 countries, which between them contain about half the human population, already have birth rates below replacement rates. The article considers whether these trends will continue and what implications there might be if they do.

PORTS AND HARBOURSThe hunt for harbour intruders.

Armada International : Vol 38 No 1, February March 2014, pp.36-44 (2)

Overview of systems designed to protect ports and harbours against underwater attacks.

RUSSIARusso-Ukrainian tensions threaten industrial fallout/ Guy Anderson

Jane's Defence Weekly: Vol 51 No 10, 05 March 2014, p.24 (122)

Troubled relations between Russia and Ukraine could affect military aerospace co-operation between the two countries and the reliance of the Russian Navy on Ukrainian yards.

Russian aircraft production and implications for Asia-Pacific - part 1.

Asia Pacific Defence Reporter : Vol 40 No 1, February 2014, pp. 30-32 (9)

Review of Russia's military aircraft industries and the Asia Pacific countries that operate them. The second part of the article will be about helicopters.

Analysis: Russia holding whip hand in Crimea/ Bruce Jones

Jane's Defence Weekly: Vol 51 No 11, 12 March 2014, p.04 (122)

The immediate future of Russian armed operations in Crimea and Ukraine depend on political rather than exclusively military issues.

Old world order: How geopolitics fuels endless chaos and old-school conflicts in the 21st century/ Robert D. Kaplan

TIME: Vol.183 No.12, 31 March 2014, p.20-25 (135)

The visceral reaction of many pundits, academics and Obama Administration officials to Russian President Vladimir Putin's virtual annexation of Crimea has been disbelief bordering on disorientation.

SEARCH & RESCUEResearches on the Williamson Turn for Very Large Carriers / Zhang Zianku ... [et al.].

Marine Engineers Journal : Vol 125 No 4, December 2013, pp.129-135

The Williamson Turn is the standard method for turning a ship round to retrace its own wake to rescue a person who has gone overboard. However it does not work with VLC vessels (over 190000 dwt). This article describes with calculations a variation to the procedure which could be used by VLCs. A table provides data for eight different size vessels used in the research.

SHIP BUILDINGLesson learned : aluminum is tricky.

Naval Engineers Journal : Vol 125 No 4, December 2013, pp.53-59 (40)

The US Navy's new Joint High Speed Vessels have highlighted the difficulties of using aluminium (US: Aluminum) in ship construction.

The ONR Ship Structural Reliability Program / Robert A Sielski ... [et al.].

Naval Engineers Journal : Vol 125 No 4, December 2013, pp.61-84 (40)

Describes the US Office of Naval Research work on the science and technology of ship structures which aims to develop technologies to monitor whole life cycle performance of ship structures with particular reference to the use of aluminium.

SHIPSJHSV-1 'spearheading' joint high speed ops.

Naval Engineers Journal : Vol 125 No 4, December 2013, pp.43-51 (40)

Describes the US Navy's new Joint High Speed Vessel. This is a catamaran style vessel "with core crews of only 22 civilian mariners, these speedy ships can transport more than 300 troops and their equipment in full load condition out to 1200 nautical miles at 35 knots". The JHSV draws less than thirteen feet fully loaded which opens access to ports and waterways that would be too shallow for traditional design ships. Describes potential missions and includes some technical data.

SINGAPORESingapore boosts defence budget to SGD12.56 bn/ Jon Greavatt

Jane's Defence Weekly : Vol 51 No 10, 05 March 2014, p.23 (122)

WORLD SECURITYOnly human? : a worldly approach to security.

Security Dialogue : Vol 45 no 1, February 2014, pp. 5-21 (47)

The tendency to focus on human aspects of security is too limited. Chemical, biological and nuclear weapons as well as man-made disasters pose threats to entire biosystems of which humans are only a part. This article discusses in philosophical terms the need for a different concept, and proposes the idea of mundicide (world death). Illustrate the argument with a case study of large scale petrochemical pollution in Ecuador by Chevron-Texaco in the 1990s.
